

YOUR TRUE INDEPENDENT VOICE

Stephen Mayne

IN THE UPPER HOUSE

The Northern Metropolitan upper house region comprises 11 lower house seats (see map).

Only 5 candidates will be successful. Political experts agree there will definitely be one Liberal (Matthew Guy), one Green (Greg Barber) and two Labor (Jenny Mikakas and Nazih Elasmari) MPs elected.

The big decision for voters is who should win the 5th spot. Labor's Nathan Murphy is currently in the Parliament after he replaced Theo Theophanous. I'm offering myself as a better alternative to this little-known 33-year-old whose father is a powerful union boss.

I've got strong preference support from a range of minor parties, including the Greens, and stand a good chance of success - with your support.

Other minor players are a chance as well. The Sex Party is receiving a first preference allocation from both Labor and Liberal. The DLP is also well supported by minor parties.

The Greens will struggle to win a second spot so for progressive voters, I'm presenting as the next best alternative to put some sparkle into the moribund upper house.

Sono un forte sostenitore del multi-culturalismo e quando i laburisti e liberali demonizzavano rifugiati e l'immigrazione durante le recenti elezioni federali, sono stato uno dei candidati che con orgoglio a favore di forte emigrazione e la diversità. Infatti, mia moglie e compagna di elezioni Paola Piccinini (nella foto) é un immigrata che arrivò in Australia nel 1972.
